November - December 2022

Revisiting the West Coast Campus

(yes we actually physically went inside there)

Looking back at Nan Hua's holding school

On 13 December 2022, a group of 3 people were on an expedition.

This was an expedition that had been planned for months in 2021, but was postponed because of COVID. After 14 months, it was finally happening - we were headed to 170 West Coast Road, the old West Coast Campus.

The campus is now occupied by Grace Orchard School, a school that caters to students with special education needs, and is currently undergoing renovation and so is currently using the West Coast Campus (similarly to NHPS a few years ago). After a bit of emailing with staff in Grace Orchard School, we were soon kindly granted permission to visit the campus.

And so we went. On 13 December, we headed to the campus and spent about an hour there, taking many photos. Some parts of the campus have changed quite considerably over the years, while other parts have remained the same. So here are the photos that we took, with some narration as we go through them...!

(warning: there are a lot of pictures)

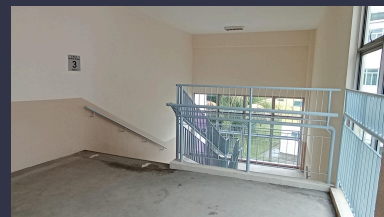

The front of the school, which has been heavily repainted by Grace Orchard School

Some pictures of the parade square/assembly ground and surrounding areas (can you spot the new lift that they built?)

Classroom block (our former classrooms were sadly locked up)

Assorted corridors and staircases

Basketball court, which is still exactly the same

That suspicious hut in the field is now open again (it is a toilet)

Round tables in the canteen???

Some gardens and green spaces

"Health & fitness"

And finally, they added these random yellow hump things on the corridor outside the former PAL rooms, which because of bad design that positioned it right under the edge of the roof above, got flooded every time it rained, so this might keep the flood waters contained.

And that's it for the review of the many photos from our memorable trip to 170 West Coast Road.

Oh wait there are more photos, and these are the weirder ones

The Dungeon

hmmm
